A Private, HBCU with about 2000
Students Enrolled.
Established in 1870.

AT A GLANCE

GOAL

- Locate a powerful attendance tool to help decipher who is attending class and who is not to assist with financial aid funding.

ACHIEVEMENT

- Established a solution to meet pain points they didn't even know were pain points.
- Found a solution that was easy for instructors to implement in their classrooms.

"The Qwickly Support team has been nothing but helpful since we became a licensee."

SCOTT BLANKS

Director, Center for Teaching and Learning

WHY QWICKLY?

In hopes of finding a more robust attendance-taking tool than one built into Canvas, Scott Blanks came across Qwickly with a simple web search. Looking for something with more reporting capabilities than the Learning Management System had to offer, he is excited to say he found all he was looking for in Qwickly Attendance Pro.

SOLUTIONS

With Qwickly Attendance Pro's enrollment verification feature, schools can capture semester-based reports to verify whether students are attending class. Institutions like Benedict College often require verification that students are attending class regularly for various reasons, including determining eligibility for financial aid distribution. In Blanks' case he states, "We are using the enrollment verification feature which we absolutely love it. It is exactly what we were looking for to identify who was coming to those first three weeks of class for financial aid purposes." This process typically involves instructors completing documentation above and beyond daily attendance. Benedict College is specifically focused on the first three weeks of class but the process is still the same.

SOLUTIONS (CONT.)

Instructors complete the Enrollment Verification form by selecting "has attended" or "has not attended" for each student in class. After this has all been done, the reports are ready to be sent out. But Blanks wanted more. He came to Qwickly's development team and they added one extra step to save even more time. Now administrators have the ability to save, schedule, and send these reports, guaranteeing these reports will be delivered to the administrators on the date they are needed. Administrators simply will go into Qwickly and add in the dates, time, and emails these reports need to be sent to, saving time and frustration.

IMPACT

Scott Blanks and his team have been using Qwickly Attendance Pro since August 2021 and have found it extremely helpful for enrollment verification purposes and just attendance-taking in general. Blanks stated that he has begun implementing different modes of attendance-taking daily in his classroom. Appreciative of how our development team has been working extremely hard to fulfill the needs of Benedict College, Blanks can say he will be a Qwickly Client for years to come!

"Some features are so versatile: I have been using the save, schedule, and send feature for athletic reports as well as enrollment verification."
